ABOUT THE DOUBLE DOSE TWINS

Michelle and Miriam, also known as the double dose twins, are twin entrepreneurs. born of Haitian and Caucasian descent, they are beautiful, fit, with an extremely curvy physique.

After graduating high school the two pursued the medical field and became surgical technicians together. Growing up shy, the twins aspired to model and after a photo shoot went viral- then birthed the "double dose twins brand.

The double dose twins, who have mastered their massive social media audience with captivating visuals on covers for straight stunning and black men magazine started branding and marketing themselves as social media models.

Since the rise of their brand, the twins have been hired to host events, advertise, brand products, and small businesses. They've been featured in numerous print and digital magazines, and have also been featured in music videos. Their two major video appearances include Gucci Mane's new videos "bung blaow burrn and "icey lil blu. Most recently they've been featured on Wild n out season 13, Black Ink, Daily mail tv Barcroft Tv, Straight stunting magazine, Smoking aces magazine, Short film DVD "Got my hustle up" to name a few.

Aside from modeling, and acting, the twins are mothers who hope to aspire to inspire other women. They seek to connect and work with other women entrepreneurs, open several businesses, coordinate and host their own events, and venture into acting.

Last year the Twins launched "Dose of Desires, which is an elegant, sophisticated and refined lingerie line designed with the many facets and shapes that define the modern-day woman. Influencers all over the world support the brand and Blac Chyna was also seen working custom Dose of Desires. As independent entrepreneurs, they combined their love for style to create a line that is infused with the subtle yet impactful power of feminism. The line consists of three distinct desires, accessible for custom fits to provide maximum support and confidence.
